North's Community Progresses

Around the campfires of early Saginaw days, burly lumberjacks told tales of the adventures of Paul Bunyan and his blue ox, Babe. As these men helped to clear the way for new settlers, this area of Michigan began to grow into a community whose citizens have seen the manufacturing industry take the place of various lumber mills.

Similar to those tales of past days, many a tall story of fantastic journeys and mysterious space beings are told in the classrooms and corridors of North as a form of amusement.

Ever since North was built forty-two years ago, it has held a position of leadership in its surrounding neighborhood. The community is as important to North as North is to the community in that our school acts as a focal point for this area. Among the social functions that take place here are the P.T.A., Boytown Basketball, Playnight, athletic and social activities of neighboring schools as well as North's plays, concerts and athletic contests. North's pride, however, has been in the caliber of her students as participating members of the community learning future citizenship responsibilities.

North's place, as an educational institution, will continue to be a vital and growing force in the welfare and progress of Saginaw.

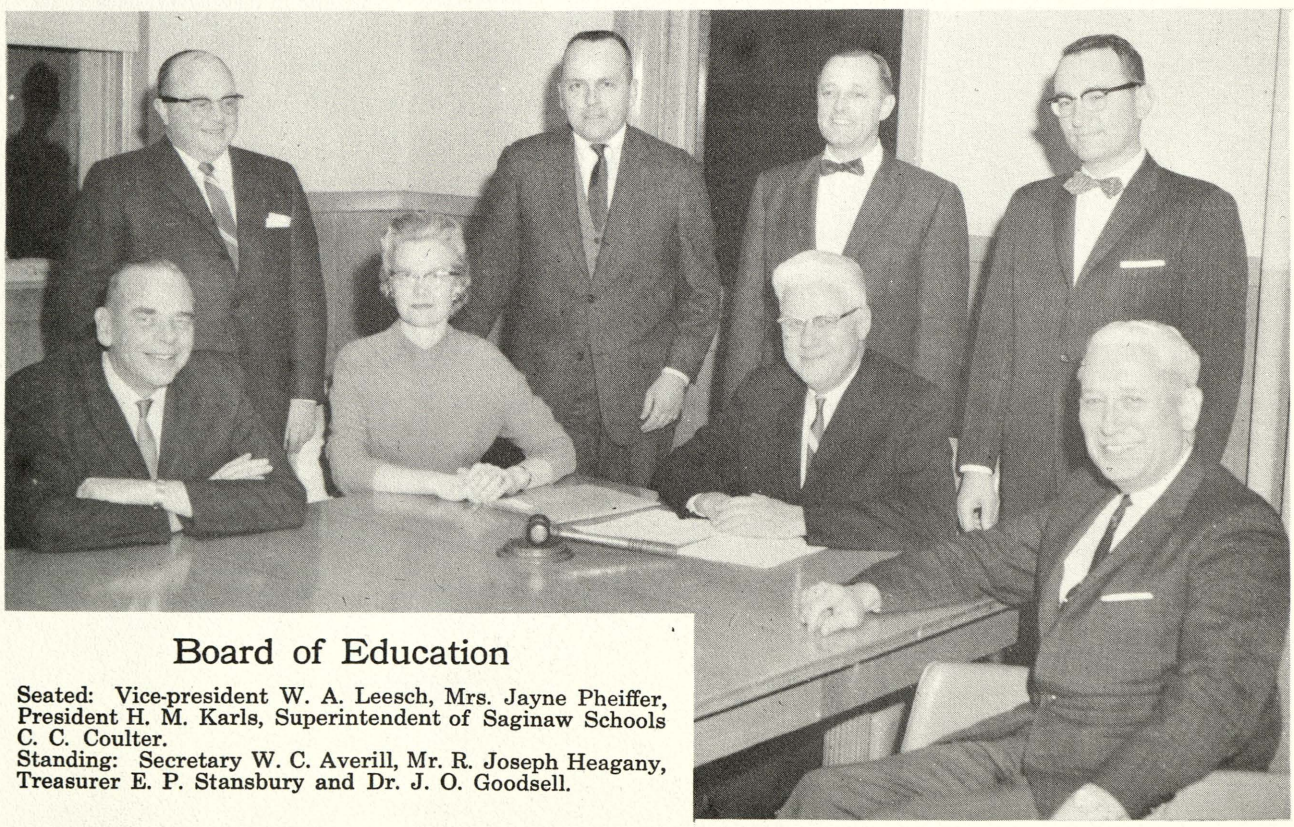
With money raised from selling papers, Northites in 1927 - 1928 bought the five foot high statue, "Lincoln, The Young Lawyer" which stands in the main hall of North. This statue is a two thirds casting of the Lincoln statue in Chicago, Illinois, created by the famed sculptor, Larado Taft, who personally measured this niche and recommended this particular statue.



Board of Education

Seated: Vice-president W. A. Leesch, Mrs. Jayne Pheiffer, President H. M. Karls, Superintendent of Saginaw Schools C. C. Coulter.
Standing: Secretary W. C. Averill, Mr. R. Joseph Heagany, Treasurer E. P. Stansbury and Dr. J. O. Goodsell.

"The Northern Light Staff and Printing Department of North Intermediate School have worked hard to complete a very fine Annual. To them a big "thank you" for a job well done. A few years from now you will have time to reflect, and remember the 'good old days.' We hope you will enjoy and treasure your 1963-1964 Annual."

Floyd E. Byron
Principal

"It is our hope that this 1964 Northern Light will be a prize possession of yours for years to come. It is always interesting to look back in any year book and remember our friends.

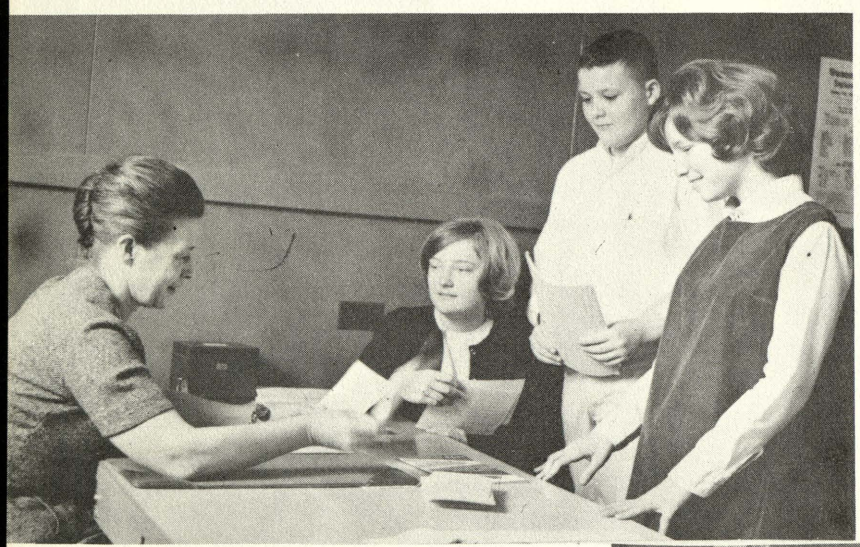
"I want to wish you the best of luck in all your endeavors. Your school and community stand ready to help you in any way that they are able. Always feel free to ask for help and guidance."

John D. Parr
Assistant Principal

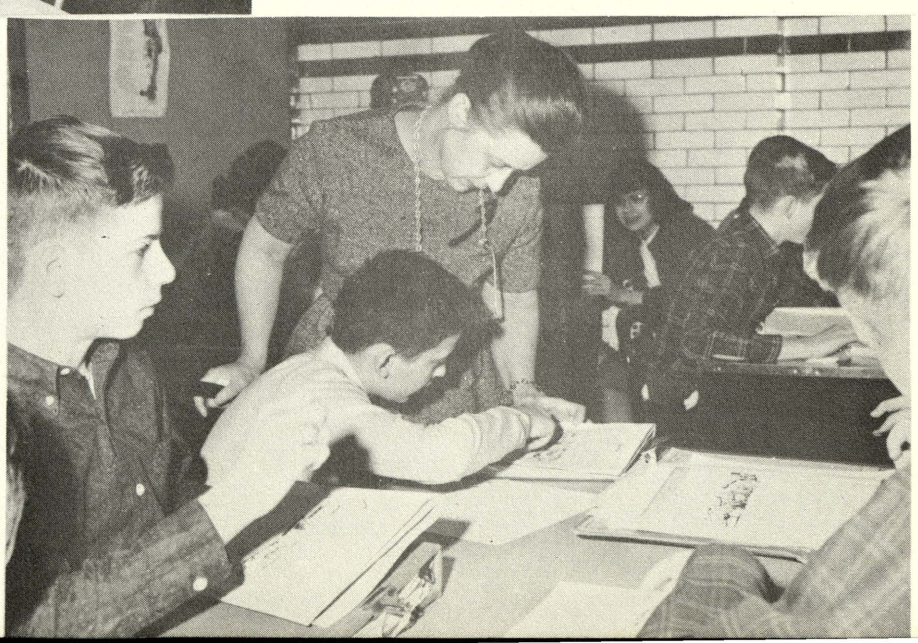
Mr. Johnson discussed Carole's test scores and schedule with her mother Mrs. Louis Natali during the individual Eighth Grade parent-student conferences.

Counselors Aid Students

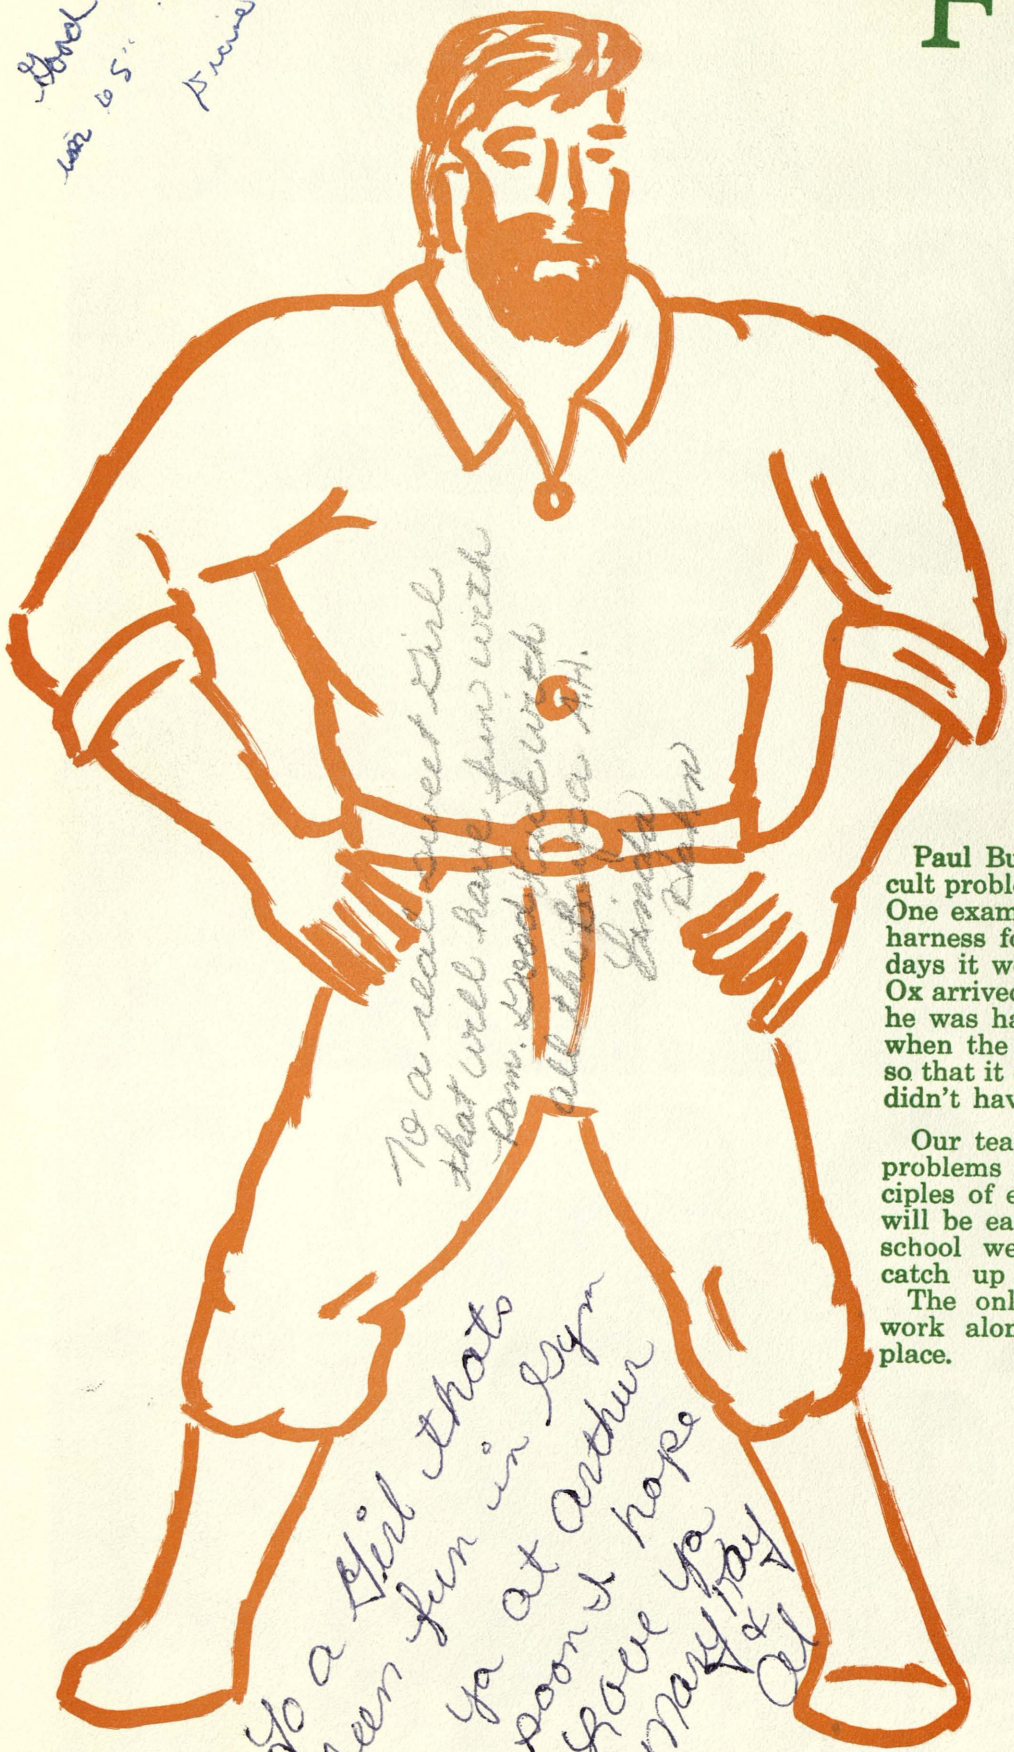
Student secretaries Arloa Leiner and Kristi Reimus (seated) assist Mr. Johnson and Miss Arnold by keeping the offices in neat order and doing odd jobs.



Miss Arnold aided Janee Pike, Cheryl Plonta and Dan Lisee in course selection for next year.



Faculty



Paul Bunyan was noted for solving difficult problems with as little effort as possible. One example was his use of buckskin as harness for his Blue Ox, Babe. On rainy days it would stretch so far that the Blue Ox arrived in camp while the load of wood he was hauling remained in the forest. But when the sun came out, the harness shrank so that it drew the load into camp and Babe didn't have to work at all.

Our teachers try to aid us in solving our problems and to teach us the basic principles of education so our load, like Babe's, will be easier to haul. As we go on in school we will find that our achievements catch up with us, just as Babe's load did. The only difference is that we have to work along the way, not stay in the same place.

Most recent recruits to the twenty-five year club are Miss Virginia Austin and Miss Marion Meyer.

Club membership includes Miss Trask, Miss Faist, Miss Meyer, Mrs. Walker. Second row: Mr. Soblesky, Miss Arnold, Mr. Newberg, Mr. Somerville, Mr. McMacken, Mr. Johnson, and Miss Austin. These teachers have taught from twenty-five to forty-two years at North.

Aid In Running School Smoothly

Mrs. Otto

From typing the bulletin to selling cough drops and loaning lunch money North's two secretaries, Mrs. Janet Ellithorpe and Mrs. Edith Otto, are kept busy by the demand of the hundreds of students and teachers at North.

Mrs. Ellithorpe checks the enrollment.

Office Helpers

Top row: Mrs. Otto, J. Morett, K. Kroll, S. Arch and M. Chasnis.
Middle row: B. Schultz, K. Reimus, J. Finger, S. Smith, J. Hepworth and Mrs. Ellithorpe.
Front row; V. Dartey, S. Gilman, J. Fedor, J. Loeffler and S. Minard.

Mrs. Marianne Ewen, district nurse with the Supervisor of Nurses A. M. Ruede leave North after a regular Thursday call.

Mrs. Coggin and Mrs. Mohnk check supplies.

Frank Alex

Our cafeteria managers, Mrs. Thelma Coggin and Mrs. Cecelia Mohnk, prepare enough food to feed several Paul Bunyans, but it all is eaten by the hungry Northites who flock there every noon.

Custodians

Front row: W. Wittlieb, Mrs. V. Vetterle, Mrs. M. Mangulis, B. Piechowiak.
Second row: G. Starr, W. Hunter, F. Alex.

Have you noticed our spotless halls? They are kept this way by North's fine custodians.

North is kept warm and comfortable during the winter months by our fireman in the boiler room.

Mr. Joseph Rousseau, guides elementary children

Cafeteria Helpers

Front row: G. Campbell, L. Harris, L. McCoy, B. Daniels, K. Freiburger, M. Thomas and M. Larson.
Second row: M. Hall, S. Toth, Cafeteria Manager, Mrs. Coggin and Mrs. Mohnk.

Student Teachers

Four Michigan State University students and four students from Central Michigan University extermed here this year. The purpose of student teaching is to give college students who plan a teaching career actual experience in a school system.

From Michigan State were Miss Judy Gunn, Miss Kay Fager, Miss Gail Verhey and Byron Delovan. Miss Barbara Bowman, Miss Karen Horvat, Miss Rebecca Olsen and Ronald Ziemba were from Central Michigan.

Miss Bowman (Mrs. Beckman)

Students

In both fact and fiction, schooldays are years of lasting friendships and memories. These years should be happy and satisfying.

Although Paul Bunyan went to school, his schooldays were neither happy nor satisfying. His biggest problem was having to stay in the eighth grade for eleven years because he had the mumps. Many of Saginaw's leaders have gone to North or the Bliss School which preceeded it.

During our years at North we grew in our knowledge of people and formed friendships and associations which will be part of us forever and the basis for our future life.

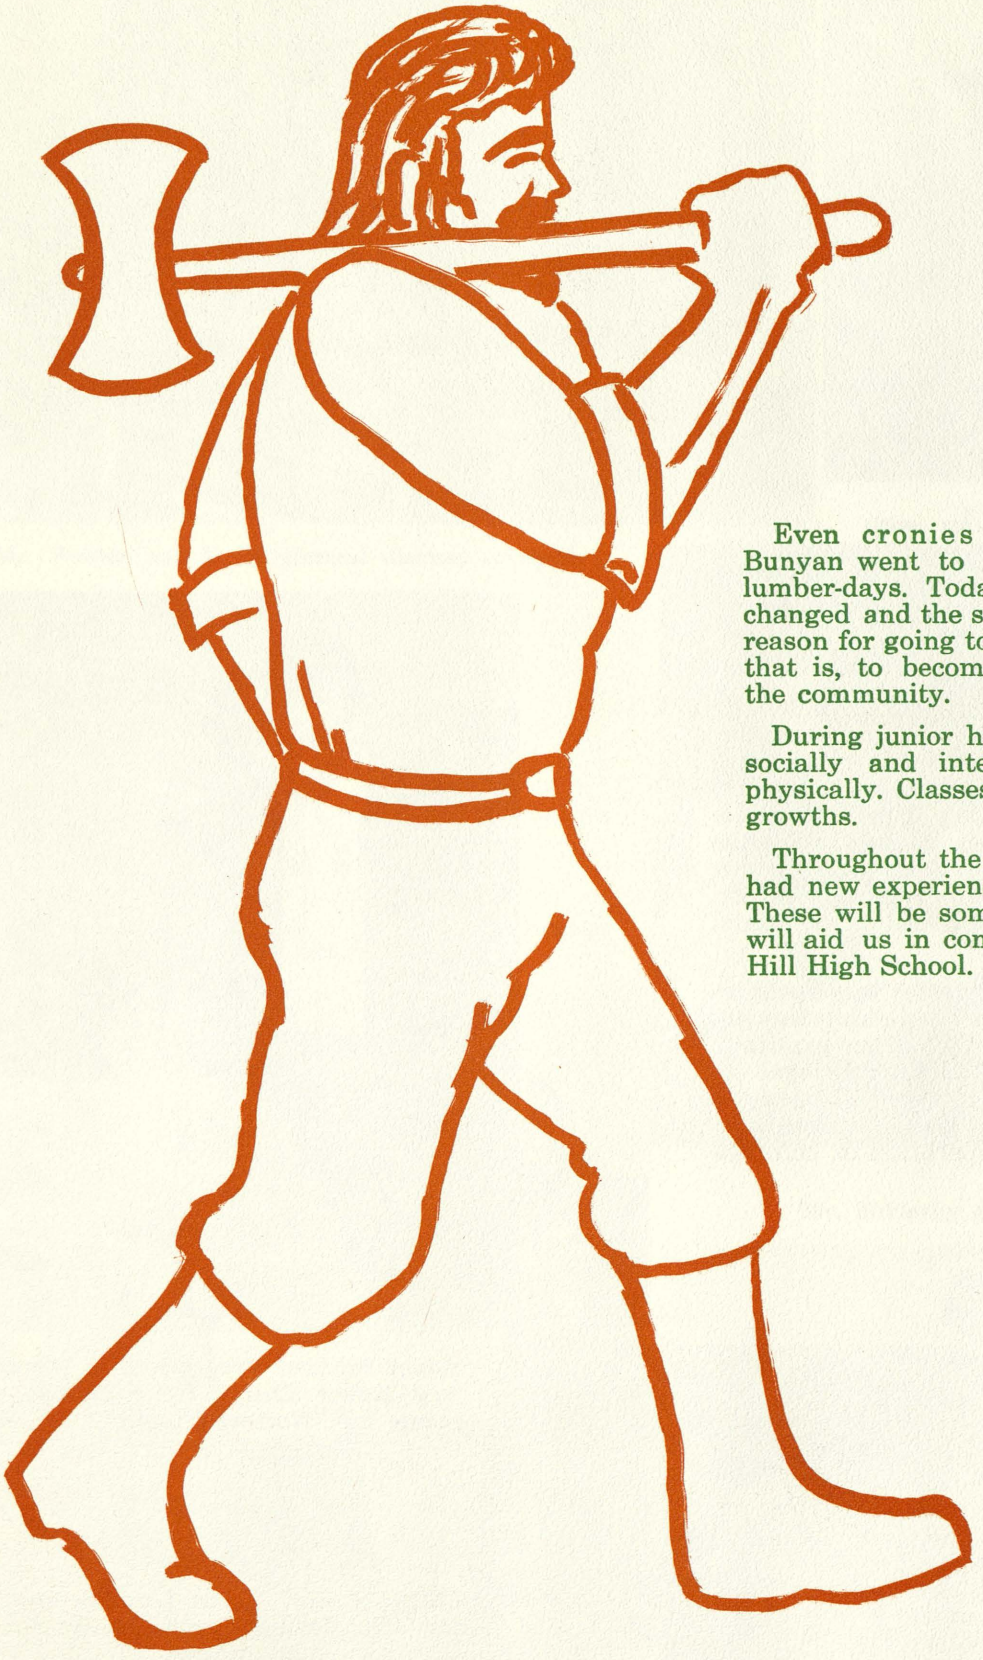
Every year at North a musical scholarship is given to the most deserving music student. This student may come from either the vocal music or instrumental music departments. The scholarship usually alternates from one year to the next. This scholarship is the Lucy B. Morley Memorial scholarship which sends its receiver to Interlochen Music Camp, the foremost musical camp in the world. Last year Steven Cramton received this award for vocal music.

Classrooms



Even cronies of woods-roaming Paul Bunyan went to school in those fabulous lumber-days. Today the method may have changed and the subjects may differ, but the reason for going to school remains the same; that is, to become productive members of the community.

During junior high we grow emotionally, socially and intellectually as we develop physically. Classes are designed to aid these growths.

Throughout the past three years we have had new experiences and met new people. These will be some of the many things that will aid us in continuing growth at Arthur Hill High School.

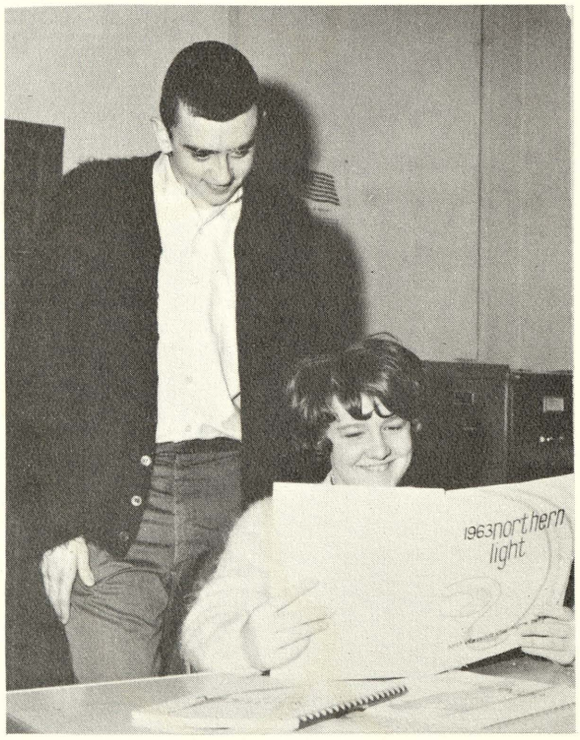
James Cullen and Steven Ross sort pictures.

Among the many tasks performed by the journalism staff were pasting pictures, correcting proof, writing editorials, and news stories, typing, interviewing persons, and organizing North's news. Throughout the year, North's journalism class, under the direction of Miss Alice Arnold, and the mechanical staff, under the direction of Mr. Louis T. Soblesky, published five school papers.

Much of the second semester was spent organizing, preparing, and publishing this annual. We would like to express our gratitude and appreciation to Mr. Fred Briegel of Werkama studio, Mr. Belmont Willard of the Board of Education, and all the others who gave their time and cooperation in completing this yearbook.



Editor Michael Waggoner and Elementary Editor Cheryl Holtz discuss the theme for "Northern Light."

Kathleen Soper, Claudia Gayda, Linda Schmitt and Sharon Oblander paste pictures and check the names of the senior students.

Journalism, Art, Printing Produce North's Publications

Mrs. Bosley gives instructions and suggestions on the weekly writing assignments.

Past and Present

Languages Lead

Barry Peterson aids Mrs. Borg in mounting student illustrations about a dictionary unit.

Yesterday's Saginawians found the use of communication necessary. For pleasure they read the tall Paul Bunyan tales while for news they read the Saginaw Courier. The art of writing effectively was used when our city fathers made the city constitution and charter.

Today students need the confidence acquired from the knowledge of mastery of the communication arts. In English classes we learn to develop and use these arts. During junior high we begin to listen critically, write objectionally, yet creatively, read with compassion and understanding and to speak intelligently.

Studying the Romans and their language keeps Miss Faist's ninth grade Latin class busy.

Today reading, speaking and writing other languages is essential for all people. Our communication with other nations depends on whether we can understand and communicate with each other.

Offered to the students this year were Latin and Spanish, taught by Miss Velora Faist and Conversational German which was taught by Mrs. Irma Hausler.

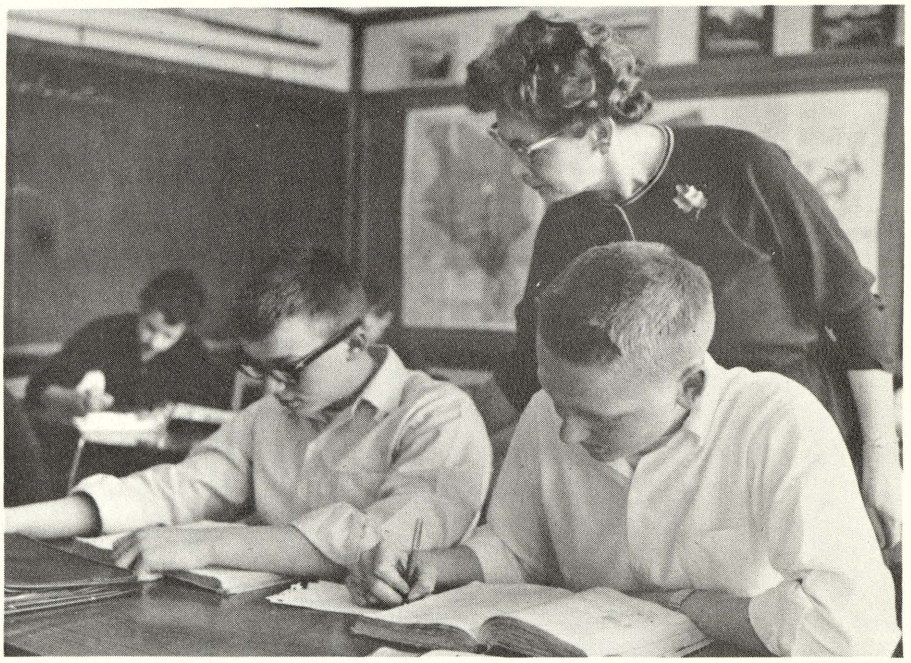
to Future Understanding

Mrs. Hausler teaches seventh grade students the language and customs of the Germans.

Miss Faist checks an assignment with Geri Donaldson.

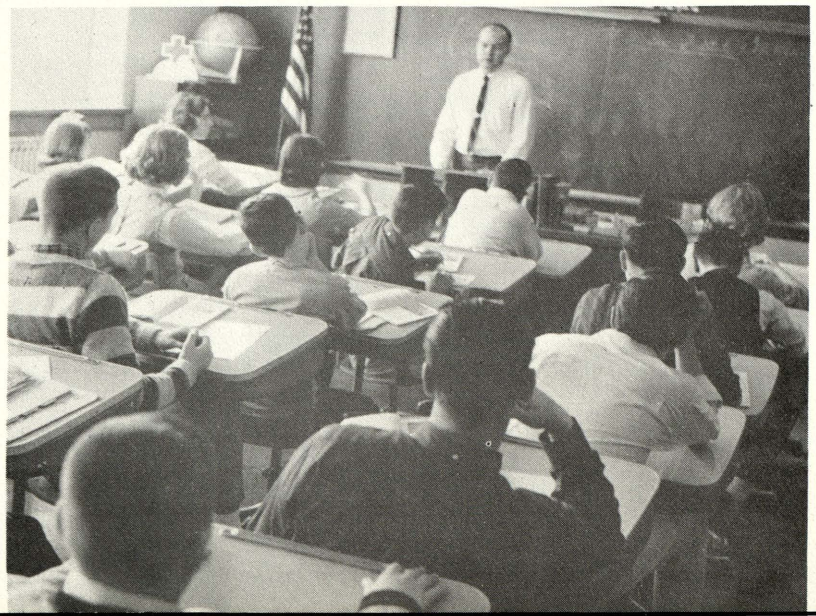
To-day's World --

Career notebooks were one of the assignments in Miss Trask's ninth grade class.

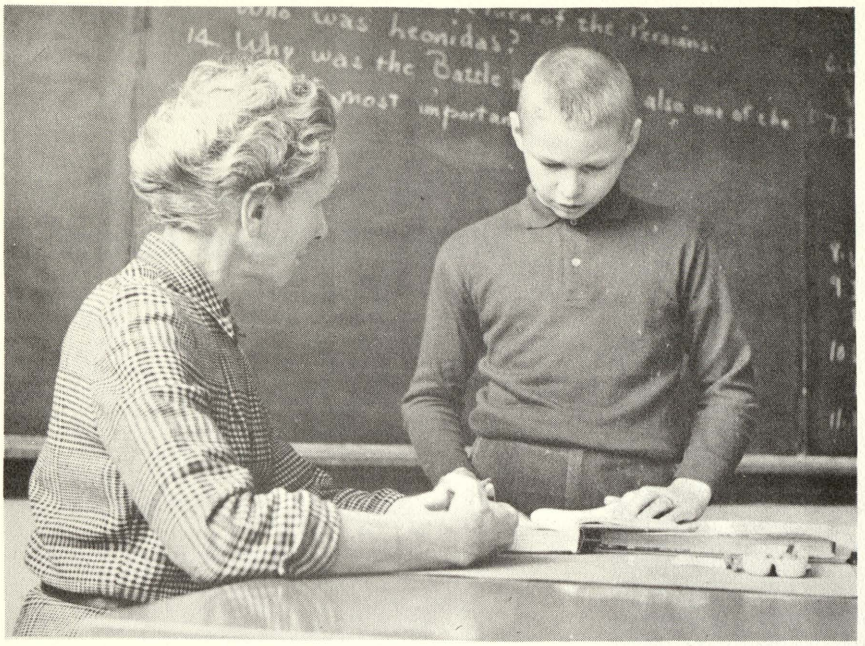


Eighth graders in Mrs. Northcott's social studies class outline history chapters.

The ninth grade civics class studied about occupations under Mr. Hayes's direction.

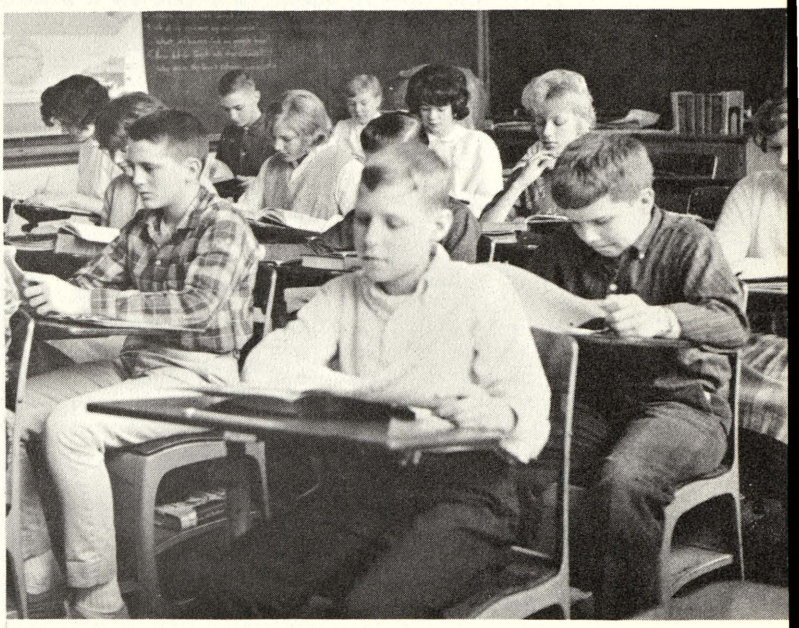


Social Studies classes make us aware of the past, future and present life. We study from how pioneers crossed the nation to modern world crises. In learning about the world we discover what we may have to face in the future. To prepare for this, we do research about careers that we might follow, receiving help from teachers, counselors and books and pamplets.



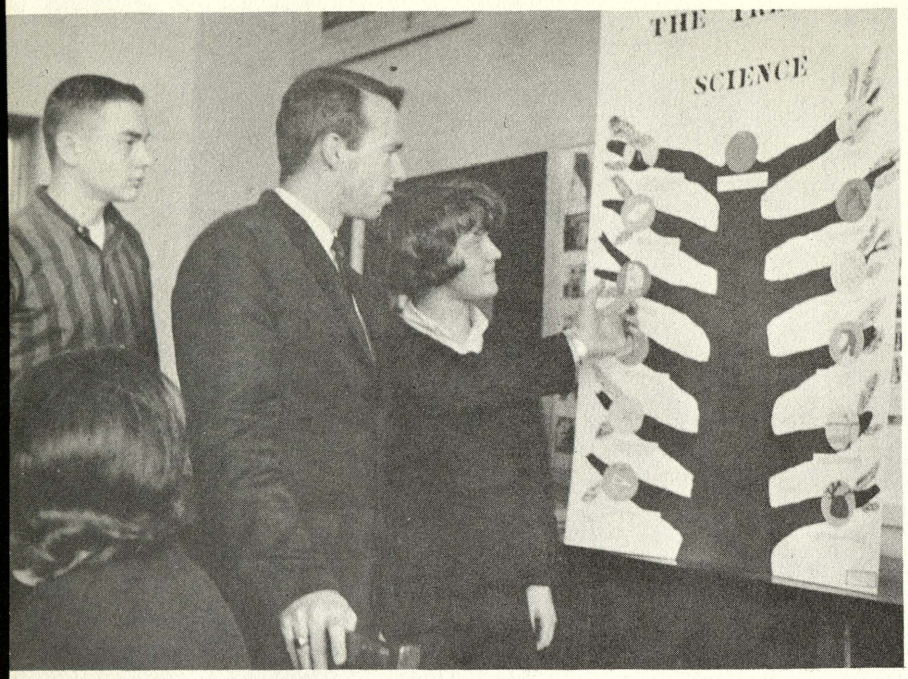
Billy Hambling is given aid by Miss Stenger while the rest of her seventh grade class study.

Tomorrow's Backyard



Mrs. Samra's social studies class read their weekly Junior Review.

Math, Science Grow



Richard Ault and Cheryl Holtz are shown a science project by Mr. Gibbs.

During Paul Bunyan's time few people were interested in science. To most of the populace a tree was a tree and it did not matter how or why it came to be.

Since then science has come a long way. In science classes, students not only learn how and why a tree grows, but also how a rocket is thrust into space, and how a motor is propelled. If we follow in the footsteps of Archimedes, maybe one day we will have a space platform from which we could use a lever to lift the world.

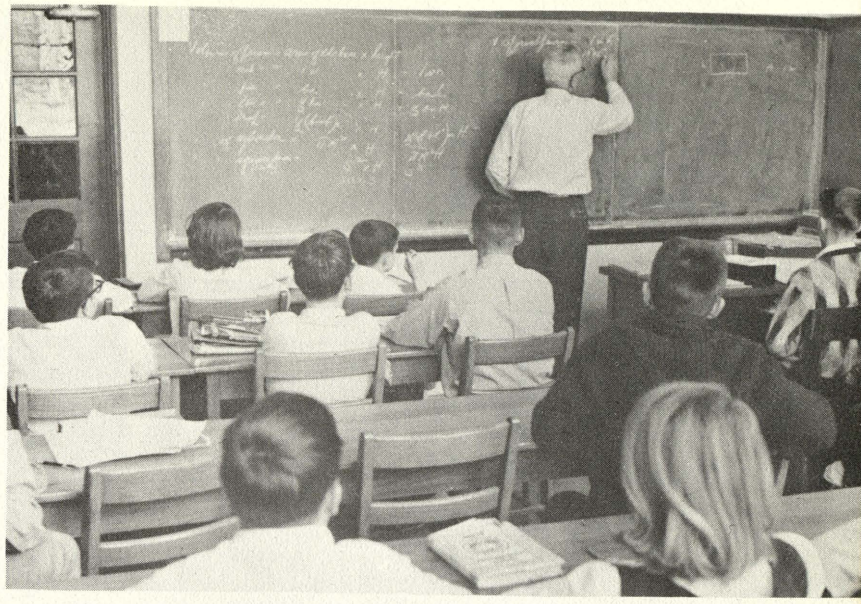
to Bunyan Stature



Mr. McMacken explains the formula for the volume of a rectangular prism to his eighth grade class.

Being able to understand numbers in today's modern world is important to everyone. We may not realize it, but each day our understanding of the use of mathematics is put to work.

Life today means more and more use of higher mathematics. Elementary teachers are using new approaches to teach the children numbers, so that in the lower grades the pupils will be given the basic forms of algebra.

As a result of this, higher math will seem simpler to us, because of our early learning of mathematical background.

Richard Nordstrom receives help from Mr. Newberg on an Algebra problem.

Mrs. Clark checks with her seventh grade class on a daily assignment.

Electives Open

Mr. Somerville directs his band class.

During Paul Bunyan's time the subjects taught were the three "R's", readin', 'ritin', 'rithmetic. The school curriculum has changed. Now students may select many subjects to uncover their hidden talents. Among these are auditorium, art, vocal music, orchestra.

Auditorium classes paint scenery for the school play.

First choir rehearses music for spring concert.

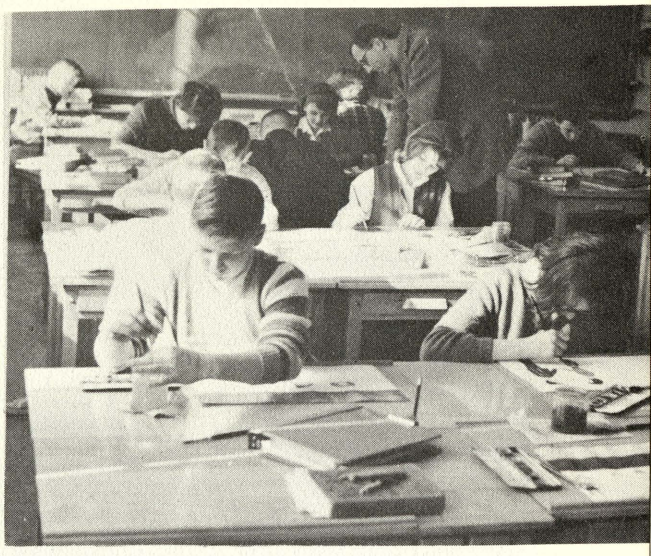
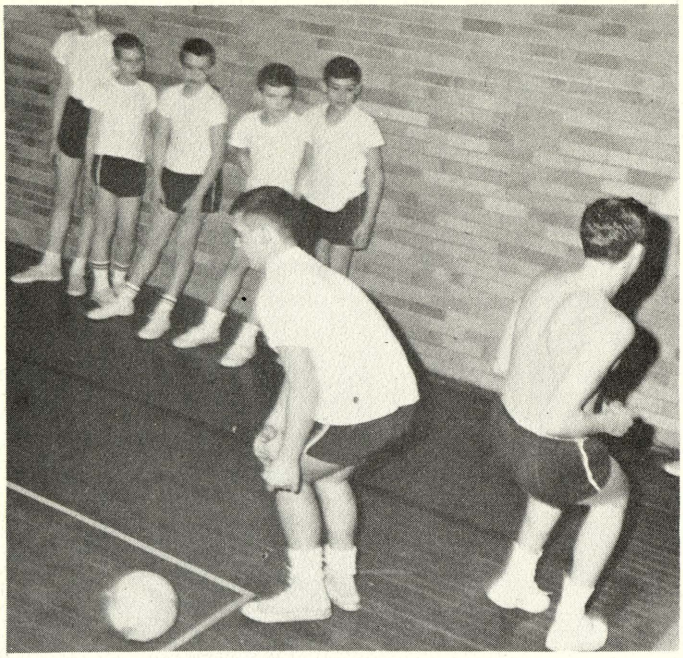
Mr. Chisholm times his ninth grade typing class.



Mr. Foulds helps a student with an art assignment.

New Fields

Many students enjoy books from our library.

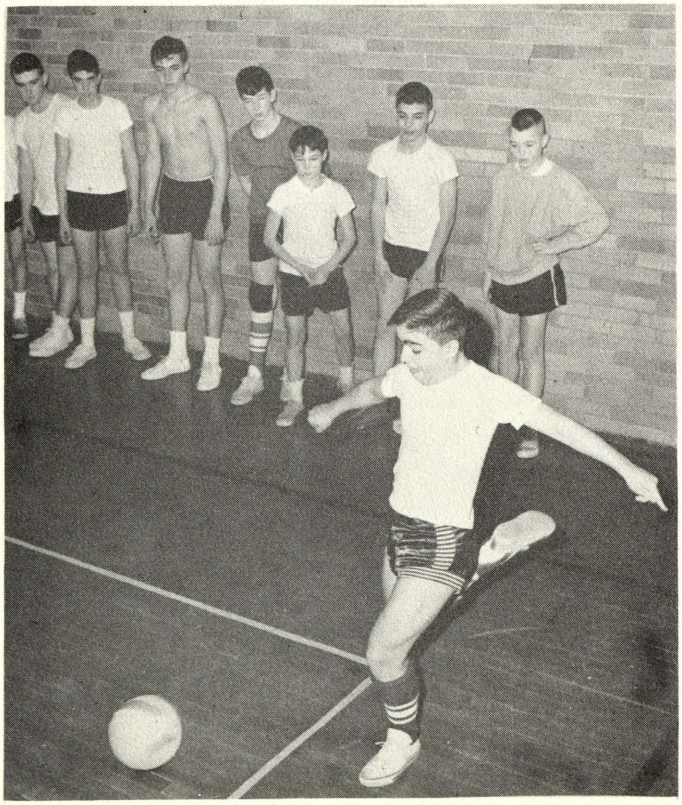


Go! Boys, go!

Keeping fit in Paul Bunyan's day was done chopping trees, rolling logs and holding boxing and wrestling matches.

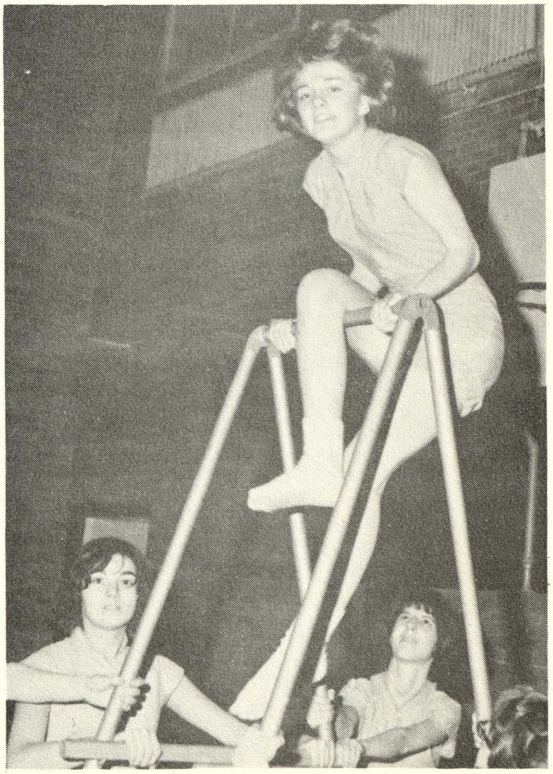
In gym, Northites are taught the importance of physical fitness and good sportsmanship. They strive to stay in top physical shape by keeping active in sports such as volleyball, soccer, badminton and acrobatic stunts.

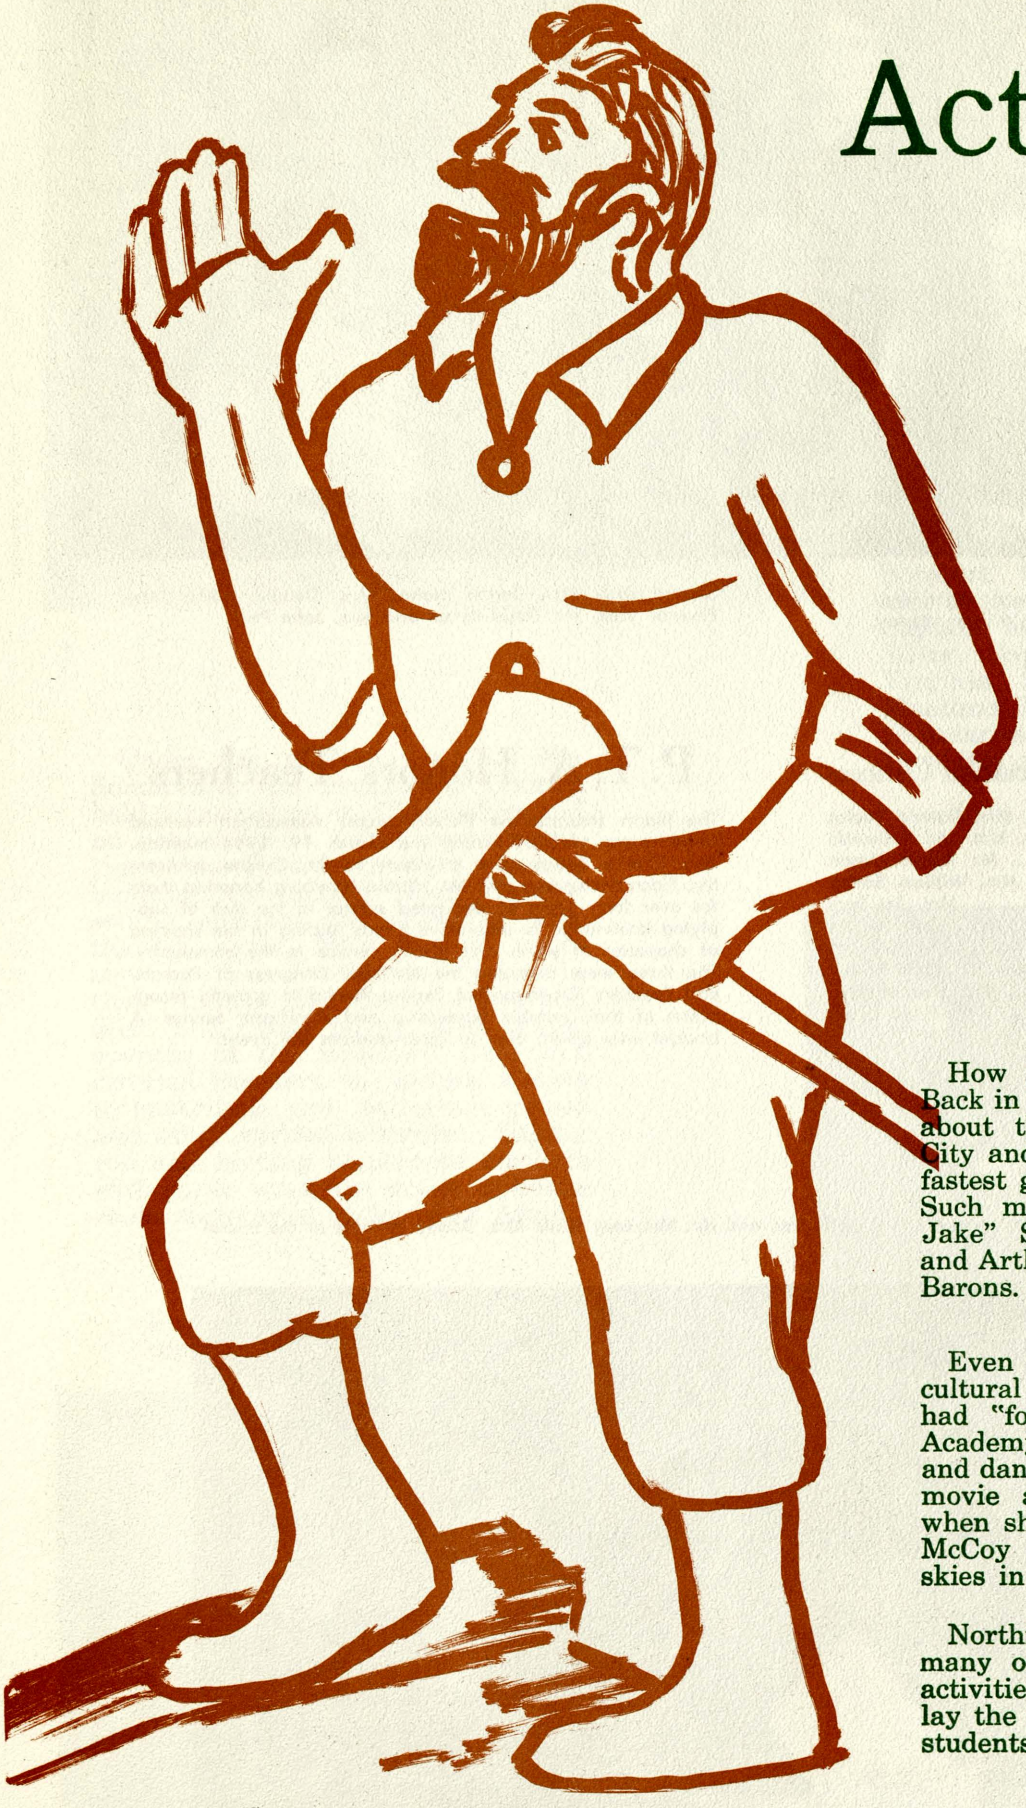
Kathy Schobert attempts a trick on the trampoline.



Kick that Ball!

Pat Forshee does a stunt on the chinning bar.





Activities

How people talk about "the old days!" Back in those days, lumberjacks spun yarns about their hero, Paul Bunyan. Saginaw City and East Saginaw flourished as the fastest growing lumbertown in the nation. Such men as Wellington R. Burt, "Little Jake" Seligman, Ezra Rust, Arthur Hill and Arthur Eddy were famed as the Lumber Barons.

Even then Saginawians were involved in cultural activities and organizations, many had "footlight fever." Germania and the Academy of Music were the center of song and dance where Marie Dressler, the famed movie actress, saw the great performers when she was a Hoyt School girl and Tim McCoy dreamed his dreams of western skies in his father's police office.

Northites, today, remain interested in many of the same school and community activities. These club and school activities lay the foundations for the careers of many students.

P. T. A. Honors Teachers

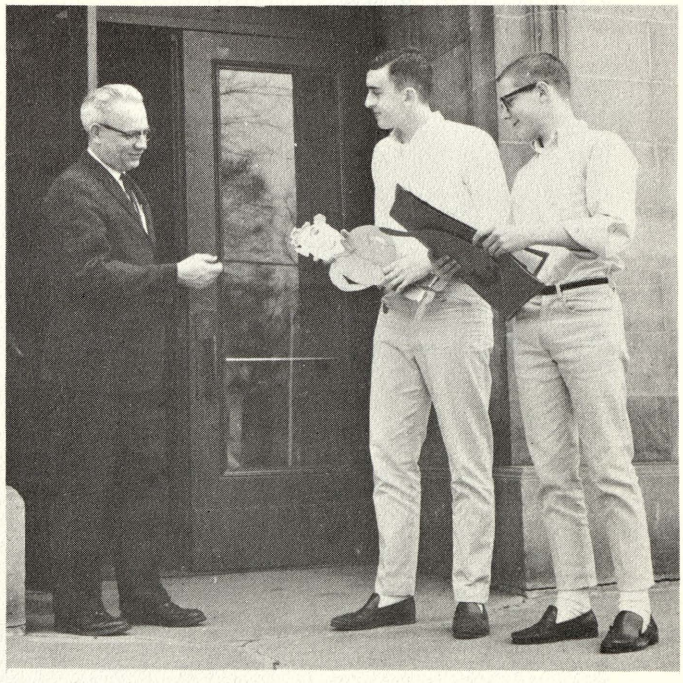
The North Intermediate Parent-Teacher Association honored three vetern teachers during the March 19, 1964 meeting. Mrs. Ortelle Bosley gave a tribute to Mr. Chester Johnson, Mr. Eldon McMacken and Mr. Harold Newberg honoring them for over forty years of dedicated service to the task of supplying knowledge to inquisitive minds, aiding in the shaping of character in youth and giving service to the community. The three were awarded the National Congress of Parents' and Teachers' Distinguished Service Award in grateful recognition of their notable leadership and significant service. A booklet was given, also to commemorate the event.

Mrs. Poulas presents the Award to Mr. Johnson, Mr. McMacken and Mr. Newberg while Mrs. Bosley remains at the microphone.

Councils Practice Self Government

In 1963-64 the Student Council, under the direction of Mr. John D. Parr, led campaigns on keeping North clean and on good sportsmanship. Selling popcorn at games and other activities was one of their responsibilities. Composing the Student Council this year were left to right, Mr. John D. Parr, Sponsor, Thomas Diffell, School President, Steven Cramton, President of the Presidents' Council, Michael Waggoner, Vice President. Cam Nellet, President of the Boosters' Council, James Cullen, Co-Captain of the Regular Monitors, Nancy Kuker, Captain of the Morning Monitors, David Silver, Captain of the Noon Monitors, Virginia Stevens, Co-captain of Regular Monitors, Linda Schmitt Representing the Secretaries' Council and Craig Johnson, President of the Vice Presidents' Council.

Under the supervision of Mr. Somerville, the Presidents' Council held a campaign on Citizenship and on School Spirit. Other responsibilities of the Presidents were reading bulletins, conducting Noon Dances, selling annuals and assisting with the 9 A Party. Miss Meyers, sponsored the Vice Presidents' Council in their annual Red Cross drive and filled Red Cross boxes. Miss Faist, sponsor of the Boosters' Council, directed Boosters in selling tickets to basketball and volleyball games and other various activities. Taking roll and helping homeroom teachers with paper work are duties of homeroom secretaries under Miss Arnold.



Fraternal Order of the Police presented copies of historical documents to North.

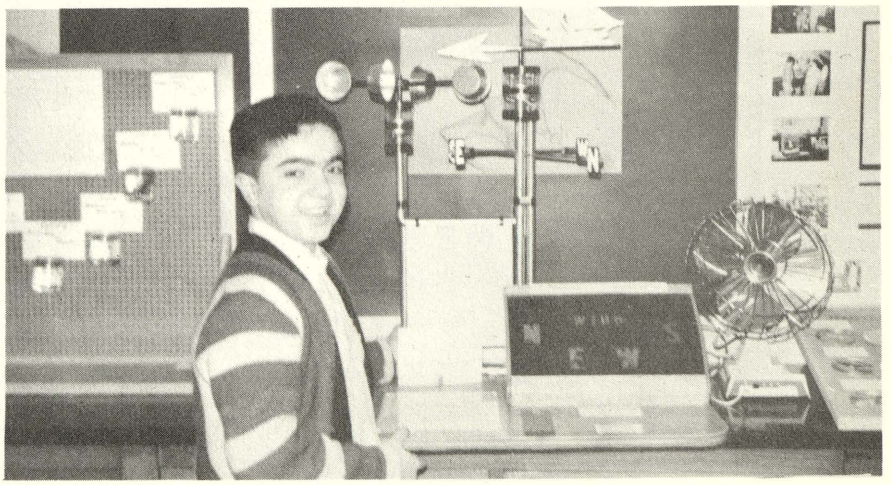
Received Safety Council Honors

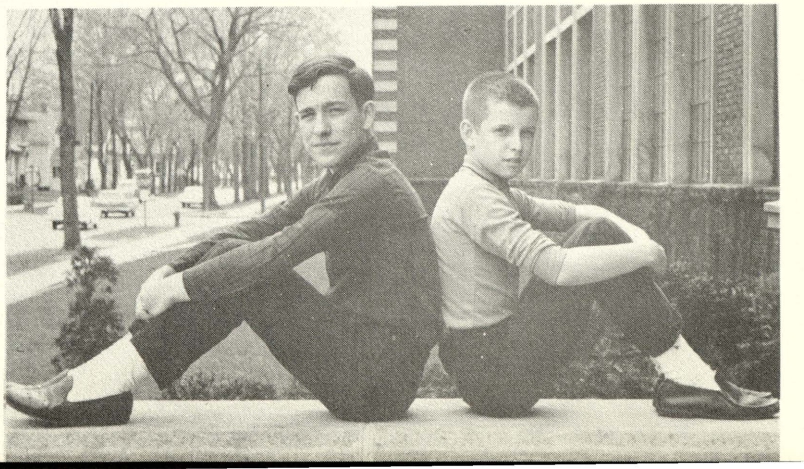
Leroy Yanna, 8-207, was absent from school for several days because of burns and smoke inhalation which he received during his heroic attempt to save members of the Yancer family when their home was destroyed by fire on January 8. Four of Mrs. Yancer's seven children died in the fire.



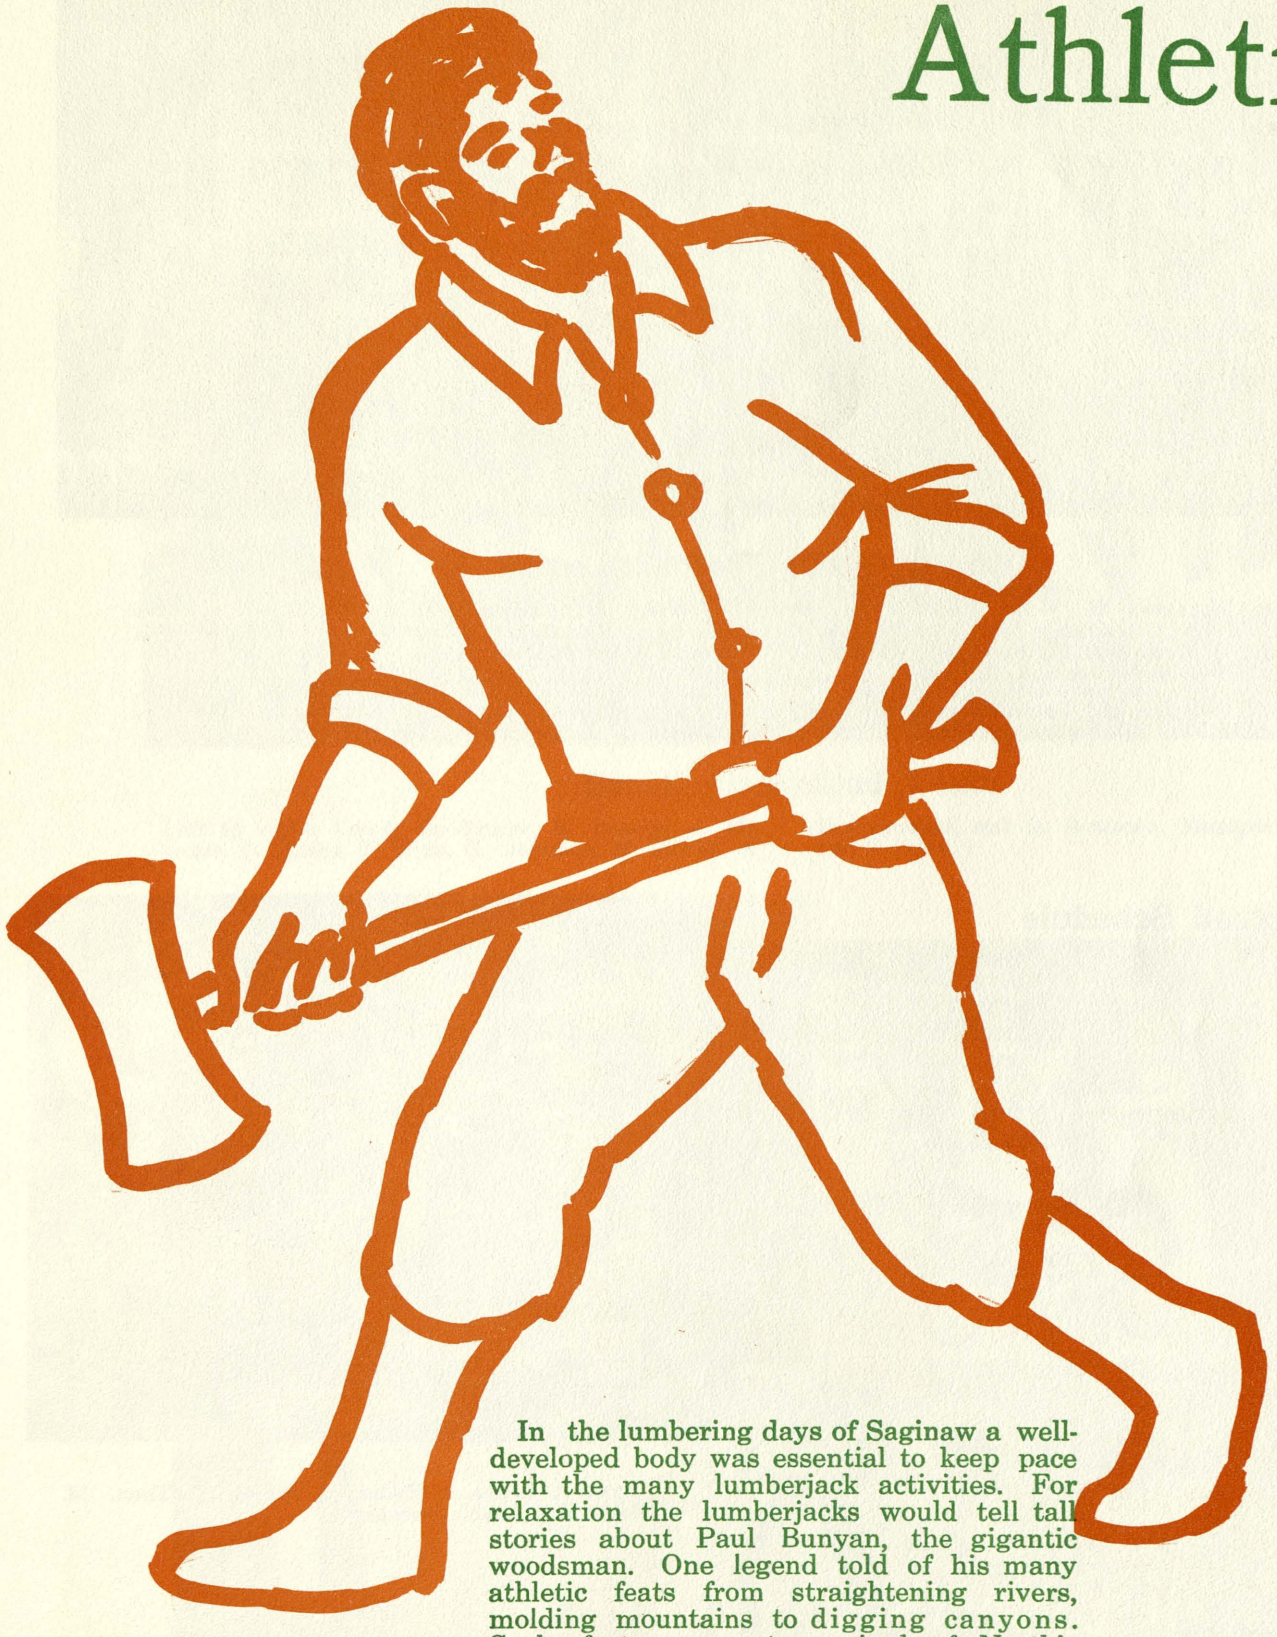
L. Lenville - Ninth Grade Science Project

Cheryl Holtz aided Jan Bershire who presented one of the professional assemblies which ranged from sleight-of-hand to a personal experience under the Communist.

Richard Bruske's and Kenneth Steele's paintings were chosen for the Red Cross International Exhibit.



Athletics



In the lumbering days of Saginaw a well-developed body was essential to keep pace with the many lumberjack activities. For relaxation the lumberjacks would tell tall stories about Paul Bunyan, the gigantic woodsman. One legend told of his many athletic feats from straightening rivers, molding mountains to digging canyons. Such feats are not required of North's athletes, but in order to compete in intramural and interschool competition today, physical development is just as important. North's varied sports program includes basketball, football, volleyball, swimming, baseball and track.

During this year's games eleven active girls, wearing maroon skirts and white sweaters, led our student body in rousing cheers. They led our seasonal pep assemblies with their high spirits and smiling faces.

However, being a cheerleader is not all fun for it requires many long, tiring hours of practice. Along with their exercises and practice they must also maintain at least a "B" average on their report cards.

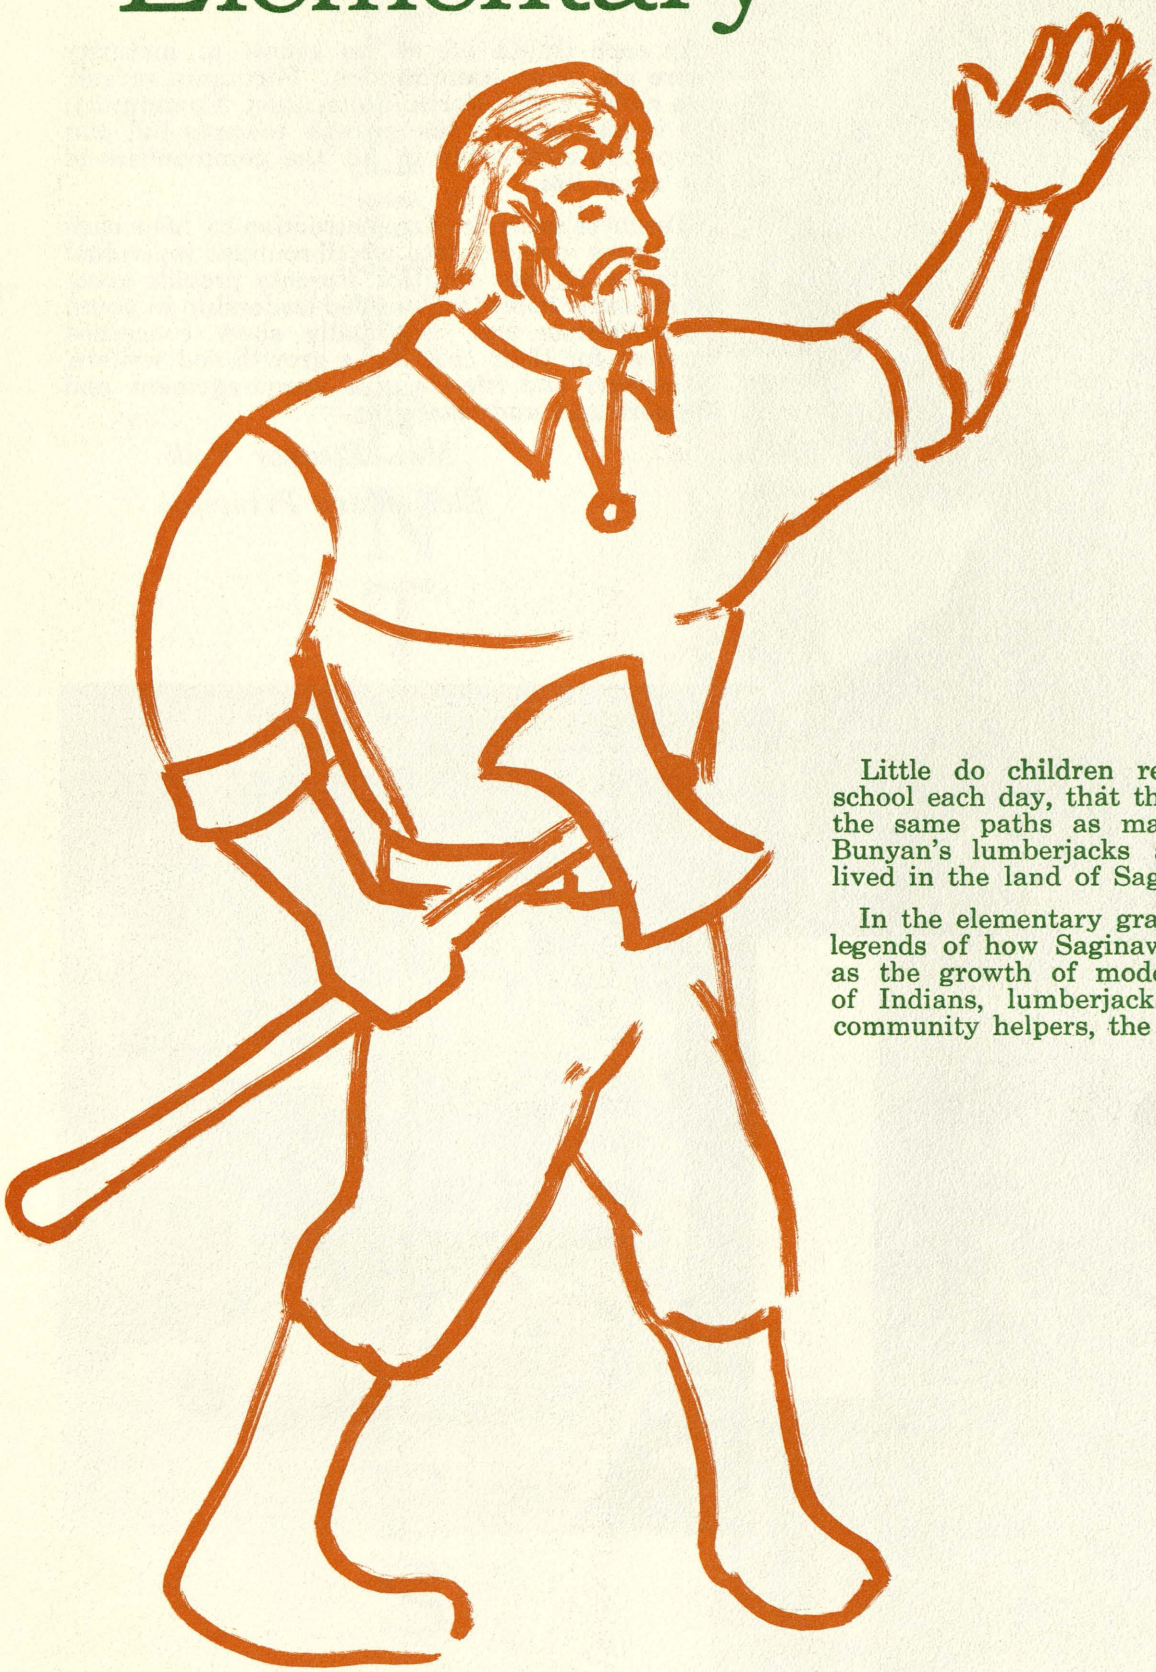
Elementary



Little do children realize, as they walk to school each day, that they may be walking over the same paths as many of the Indians, Paul Bunyan's lumberjacks and the like who once lived in the land of Saginaw.

In the elementary grades are retold the many legends of how Saginaw was pioneered as will as the growth of modern Saginaw. They learn of Indians, lumberjacks and then of modern community helpers, the mailman, the policeman.

In each child's life as he grows to maturity there are many communities. Fortunate, indeed, is a child in the North Elementary Community. He is nurtured in his growth towards full participating citizenship in all the communities of his adult life.

Teachers individualize instruction to help each youngster develop into a well-rounded individual utilizing all his abilities. Parents provide good, solid family homes and needed leadership in youth organizations and continually show concerned interest for their children' s growth and welfare. Neighbors and friends give encouragement and support and understanding.

Beginning Students Learn To Share, Work Together

To most five-year olds school means learning to read and perhaps to write. They want to be able to read books, road signs, and newspapers just as parents and older brothers and sisters can. But before they can begin, there is much to learn and kindergarten is a fine place to begin this learning.

In kindergarten youngsters are made comfortable with the language they want to read. They are helped to add to their store of language meanings. They learn to communicate with each other in group discussions. They learn how to use their ears—to listen as to hear. With these skills well started, children can move easily into the first grade reading program.

First Graders Study Pets, Begin Reading

First Grade in room 117 has had a busy year. We studied about pets and animals learned how to care for our pets. Puppies, kittens, a bird, a turtle, and goldfish visited our room.

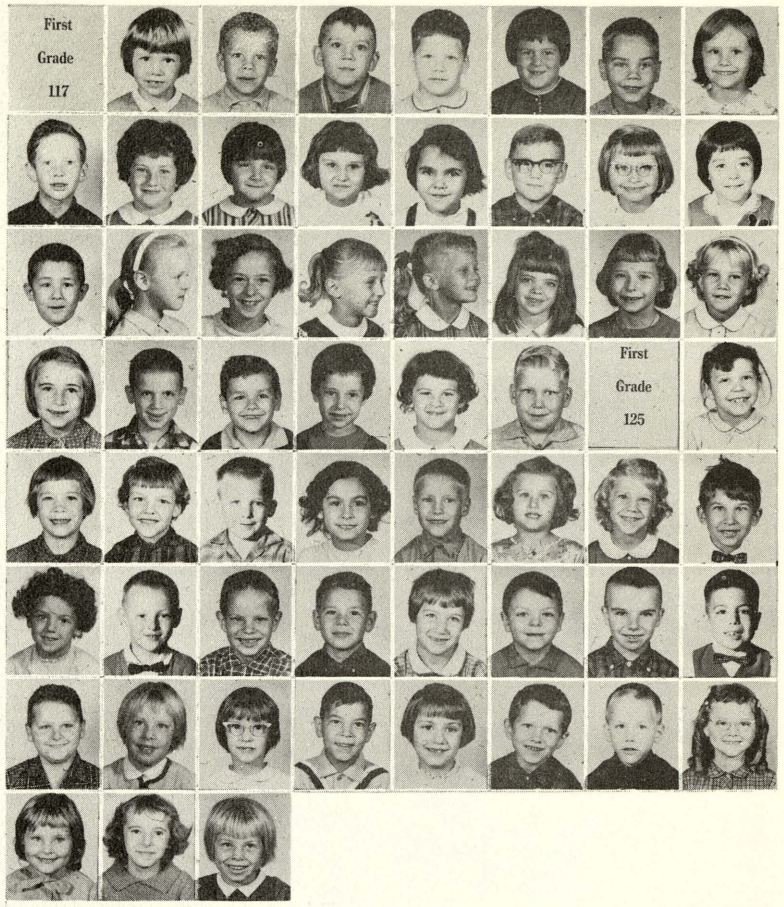
We studied the library, grocery store and greenhouse. We had a flower and vegetable garden in the room. The plants were transplanted to our gardens at home.

We enjoyed reading and read many books. We could hardly wait until we got in our hard cover books. We made ABC Books and our own story book.

Easter was fun as we had our own Easter Bonnet and a clay rabbit to take home.

We liked to sing and learned many songs. Our favorite song was "Shanghai Chicken Grows So Tall."

Miss Palmer 117



The first graders in Room 125 planned their activities together every day. We worked for enjoyment in reading independently and in groups. Much supplementary reading was done. Some of us wrote our own stories to read to the entire class. We had a circus in our room.

We made life-size clowns and had a circus parade complete with cages of wild animals.

Many stories have been dramatized. We made puppets and puppet shows of our favorite stories. In studying Community Helpers we discovered the need for every person in a community helping all others. We need each other.

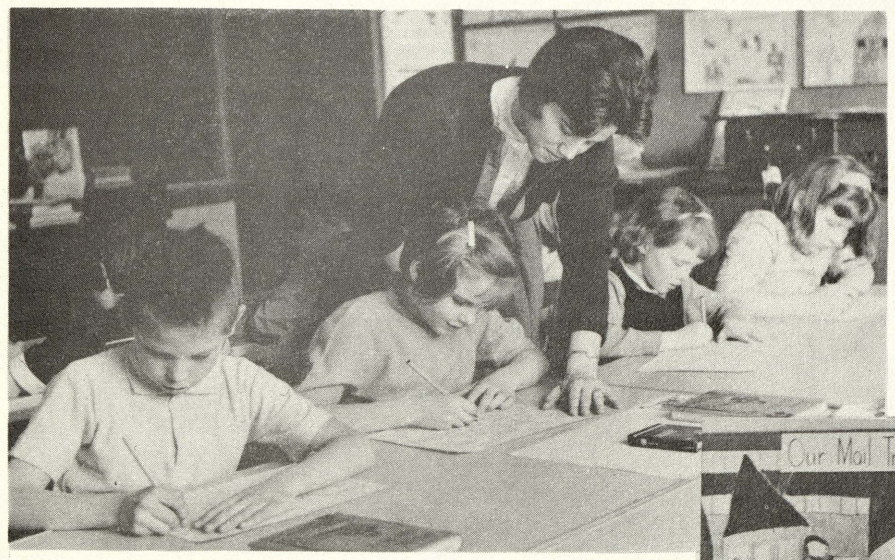
Second Graders Study Community Helpers

Our community has been important to the first and second graders in Room 116 this year. We have studied many of the workers who serve the community as well as discussed our families and their roles in our neighborhood.

We visited Leppien's Home Bakery, the Bowman Dairy, the Post Office, and the Central Fire Station. We had fun making butter, building a dairy store, making tooth-powder, playing with our model farm, writing letters for our post office, and growing flowers and plants.

We made new discoveries in arithmetic, science, and reading. We worked hard together, we grew tall and we formed new friendships during this busy year

Mrs. Willman 116



We have had a busy year doing many exciting things. We have studied our community and community helpers. We have had fun learning about magnets and also enjoyed an early fall unit on insects.

The unit on Dinosaurs was very interesting. We learned about the different prehistoric periods in which the dinosaurs lived. We discovered many things about these ages. There were stories and books made available to us to help our study of this unit.

We have made several murals which gave us a fine opportunity to show our talents with paint, chalk, and color.

We worked on improving our arithmetic, vocabulary, reading, and writing.

Mrs. Cummins 115

Third Graders Find Pioneers Interesting

We have discovered that Pioneers and Indians lived exciting and dangerous lives.

We have also learned that we are living in an exciting space age.

We have worked hard doing reading, writing, arithmetic, and spelling. Doing cursive writing and learning to multiply and divide were events in our lives.

Miss Kundinger 217

"Where we walk to school each day
Indian children used to play."

We studied Early Saginaw and tried to imagine what our city was like in those early days. We found the stone markers that helped us remember important events.

We studied our modern industrial city of today and thought of all the changes. Schools are named for famous citizens of long ago and now.

The Timber Town Festival will help all third graders think about lumbering days.

Students Strengthen Basic Study Skills

This year we learned about early explorers and communities among the Vikings. We found many of their adventures exciting. We continued our classroom travel to a still colder climate and read about Alaska, one of the last areas of the world explored by white man. We compared the low mountainous country with the high mountain range country of Switzerland. We concluded our study of community life with hot and moist lands in Africa.

We enjoyed many stories, working to strengthen our reading skill.

In arithmetic we practiced working accurately in addition, subtraction, one and two place multipliers, short and long division methods with one place divisor, and applying the multiplication facts 3's through 9's. Story problems were worked using all the processes in mathematics.

Mrs. Evert 218

Our fourth and fifth graders have had some interesting science projects together. Last fall we identified all the Michigan trees and studied how plants and trees grow. We did experiments with leaves and seeds.

Mrs. Vogel 213

We studied astronomy and learned many new concepts about our Universe. We became interested in the constellations. We visited Cranbrook planetarium and museum.

We studied Michigan. We identified famous people and talked of their contributions to our world.

Mrs. Vogel 213

Fifth Graders Study New Science Concepts

Columbus discovered America in 1492, but in 1963-64 Room 212, grade 5, discovered how to do modern arithmetic. Like Columbus, we found the experience exciting.

Fifth Grade Social Studies always means learning about our country and our next door neighbors. Murals, plays, reports, and maps have helped us understand what we've read. There have been several trips to the Saginaw Museum.

Man could not live without leafy green plants---so we learned when we studied leaves. Life under the sea is most interesting as is the study of electricity.

We've read good books from our library and in our reading groups. We've tried to add new words to our vocabularies. Dancing and exercises were good for us and fun too.

It's been a pretty good year!

Mrs. Wells 212

This year it has been the experience of Room 208 to visit the continents of South America, Asia, and Africa and also the British Isles. With this experience we have learned how people earn their living, educate their children, and use their leisure time in those countries.

The fifth grade in our room through the reading of books and the use of visual aids, gained a knowledge of how our great country was born.

In arithmetic we have added depth in our understanding of numbers. Working closely with science and health, we have uncovered some of the mysteries around us.

Sixth Graders Learn New Math Principles

We learned many new processes in arithmetic and got to understand common fractions and decimal fractions. When we studied Asia, we had a play about China. There was much art work in our stage properties for the play. In our study of Brazil we learned how coffee is produced and then showed all the steps on a large mural in colored chalk. Our trips to the museum were particularly helpful in science. We hope we learned the things we will need to be good seventh graders.
